Risk, Claims and Why Contractors Do What They Do!

Better handling of risk and change reduces friction that impacts project success. We look at why contractors act why they do and some things that can be done to improve the working relationship.

Does it seem like there is a never-ending series of potential change and claim notifications coming across your desk for things that seem to be minor or premature. Is this an indication that the jobsite working relationship is headed in the wrong direction? Perhaps the situation has more to do with the contract requirements than a difficult contractor?

We look at the impact of contract language on contractor behavior and some of the ways that we can reduce friction in the system, including the new public works claims resolution process. CA PCC 9204 is an attempt to encourage fair-dealing with public works contractors and provides a process for informal dispute resolution.

Learning Objectives

- understand how contract language affects contractor behavior
- how robust risk management can lower costs
- understand different approaches to claims resolution
