Effective Leadership and Communication in the Modern Era

In the modern workplace, there is a higher demand, expectation and precedent on effective leadership and communication. Unfortunately, many of us were not taught how to be leaders in this new complex environment; instead learning on the fly. In this session, our panelists will walk attendees through the core elements of effective leadership. They will draw from their professional experience as well as evidence-based research on effective companies, teams and leaders.

Learn about:

- The most important elements of leading a team to facilitate performance and trust
- How to communicate more effectively and assertively
- The fundamentals of being an emotionally intelligent leader
