Integrated Project Delivery (IPD) Another Myth or a Solution?

This seminar is intended to cover the development of the Integrated Project Delivery Method (IPD) of contracting and the current and increasing interest in this project delivery method.

Discussion topics will include:

- The structure of the IPD contract
- Specialized IPD contract issues
- Does IPD truly reduce the risk of adverse outcomes?
- The legal relationships among the parties and their responsibilities
- The current appropriateness of IPD in Public Works Contracting
- Whether or not IPD is "no fault"
- What is driving the IPD phenomena

Seminar Instructor:

Michael J. Baker
Partner

Atkinson, Andelson, Loya, Ruud & Romo

Mr. Baker has extensive experience in representing public and private owners, design and construction management professionals and contractors in all matters related to design and construction. He is also a recognized national and international author having published over 200 articles in design and construction law. His expertise includes contract analysis, contract performance disputes, construction claims, professional liability, surety bond claims, and the full range issues involving public and private construction projects, engineering systems and specialized facilities. In 2010, Chambers USA named Mr. Baker as a "leader in his field", construction law and claims.
